

Summer Update

Hannah Baker

Tutoring

Since the beginning of August, I have been working with tutoring! Unfortunately, the children's choir (CANTO) ended because there was not enough attendance. In tutoring, we work in the schools with 1st through 3rd grade on reading, writing, and simple math.

Above: CANTO kids writing the verse of the week in July. Left: Helping some girls in tutoring.

Summer's Over

A few weekends in July were spent hiking up to a beautiful view called Hummingbird Lookout. August 4 the interns (Sarah and Emma) headed back to the States.

DESEO

The DESEO program in the schools is going well; we have taught 20 values so far this year with two left before the last exam. Teaching seven or eight classes a week, I have learned a lot of Spanish and been pushed to grow in a lot of ways. Giving classes on values like healthy eating or perseverance can be extremely convicting.

Día del Niño

The Children's Day is a Honduran holiday which we celebrated in all of the schools we work in with a skit, a vegetable dance, and a clown show. We also visited the local hospital in our costumes to pass out toys in the children's ward.

Getting Ready for Goodbyes

My time here is coming to an end. There are less than two months until I go home on November 5. Please be in prayer for a healthy transition and for the work that I'm sad to leave. The hardest goodbye will be my beloved DESEO team with whom I've been blessed to work for the last year and a half.

